

A LIVE-WIRE NEWSPAPER --- WITHOUT DOUBT THE BRIGHTEST AND BEST APPEARING COUNTRY WEEKLY PUBLISHED IN THE DOMINION OF CANADA

TELEGRAPH
NEWS TOLD
IN BRIEFCO-ORDINATE THE WORK OF
POLICE FORCES ON PRAIRIES

EDMONTON, Feb. 1.—The possibility of co-ordinating the police forces of the province in the interests of economy and better service, has been raised by Attorney-General Brownlee, who states that he has made certain tentative proposals to the provinces of Manitoba and Saskatchewan with that end in view.

Mr. Brownlee points out that all three prairie provinces are in exactly the same position so far as provincial policing is concerned, that is, all three provinces maintain their own force of provincial police, while the Dominion government maintains in each province, a force of the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, which body attends to the enforcement of the Dominion acts.

Expense Is Great

The expense entailed by this duplication of forces is considerable, states Mr. Brownlee. In Alberta, for example, the provincial police force is maintained at an annual cost, in round figures of half a million dollars. The provincial police force numbers some 190 officers and men of all ranks. The Royal Canadian Mounted Police force in this province consists of some 260 officers and men, and its wage bill alone is in the neighborhood of $300,000 annually, so that the total cost of the force must be far in excess of the half million dollars which is required for the maintenance of the provincial police body.

Cut Down Force

With a co-ordination of the two forces and a centralization of authority, Mr. Brownlee estimates that the work of enforcing Dominion acts, together with the various other duties undertaken at present by the R. C. M. P., would probably not require over 70 additional men.

One big advantage of a co-ordination of forces would be seen in the task of stamping out the illicit stills which are being worked in various remote parts of the province. This task comes under the inland revenue department, and the R. C. M. P. is the only body charged with the enforcement of the Inland Revenue Act.

Ottawa Notified Yet
Mr. Brownlee states that so far, no suggestion has been made to Ottawa looking to the co-ordination of the two forces. All that he has done to date, is to place his views before the attorney-general of the three prairie provinces, with the idea of finding out to what extent their opinions in the subject might coincide with his own. A letter from the attorney-general of Manitoba yesterday, suggesting a meeting between the attorney-generals of the three provinces, where the whole question of police administration throughout the prairie provinces might be gone into with a view to finding out how far a co-ordination scheme would be practicable.

Should the three provinces reach an agreement in the suggestions put forward by Mr. Brownlee, the matter would then be taken up with the authorities at Ottawa.

WHEAT BOARD THIS YEAR, IS OPINION OF THE PREMIER

EDMONTON, Feb. 1.—"I think we can get a wheat board this year," stated Premier Greenfield Thursday morning, when asked by The Herald as to the prospects in this regard, "and though Jas. Stewart is much too busy a man these days to be a likely person for us to ask to form a board, it must be remembered that we shall have a lot more time this year in which to look about to make selection of a good man."

The premier is of the opinion that Manitoba will pass the required enabling legislation, and press dispatches from Ottawa, he added, indicated the possibility of a strengthening of the legislation passed last year, though the existing legislation now on the Dominion statute books might be extended by order-in-council.

Progressives Working

The Progressives in the Dominion house are understood to have such a move under consideration, said the premier.

"I hope that we can get together on the discriminatory freight rates resolution and make it unanimous," said Premier Greenfield Thursday morning, when asked for his views in this regard.

"The government has not taken the position that it must be put on the back for what it has done. That is not the idea at all. We took a certain and definite line of action over this matter of freight rates, without an opportunity of asking the legislature for its approval of that action, and all we want now is that the house shall express by resolution its approval or disapproval of what we have done."

Foretold by Boyle

Premier Greenfield did not see that it mattered greatly from which side of the house the resolution came, and it had been his intention, had not Mr. Boyle's resolution foretold him, to give the house an outline of what the government had done, and to ask for its approval or otherwise, to the action taken.

There is a possibility that when the house meets today both sides may reach a compromise as to the form of the resolution so that it may go forward to Ottawa as a unanimous resolution.

FRENCH GUNS COMMAND ALL
RAILWAYS IN RUHR VALLEY

DUESSELDORF, FEB. 2.—(By Canadian Press).—The blockade of the Ruhr valley from within was absolutely complete today. Not a single ton of coal or coke has entered Germany from the Ruhr in the past 35 hours, the French authorities announce, adding that the measures they put into force at midnight on January 31 are totally effective. The Germans show no disposition to contradict the French as to the general effectiveness of the blockade, but they relate how one train of 46 loaded cars, disregarding all signals, ran the blockade at Hord, near Dortmund, at 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon, and escaped into interior Germany.

Guns Command Railways

The French have 75's commanding every line into Germany, and the directors of the railroads have been informed that any locomotive attempting to escape will be fired upon. Inquiries addressed to the French authorities as to why they have not resorted to the simpler way of tearing up a few hundred yards of track along the occupied frontier of the Ruhr, elicited the reply that they did not wish to interfere with other traffic than exports of coal and coke for the present, and are desirous of giving the railway men full opportunity to resume work.

Wine Ration Safe

Gen. Payot, the French quarter-master-general, told the correspondent the French army supply services were operating efficiently. He said he had seven days' supplies of food ahead, while the poilu is assured of 50 days' rations of his red wine, the "pinard" which is just as essential to the morale of French armies as food.

One Way of Doing It

A company of French soldiers, quartered at Bodelschwing, had been using the shower baths intended for the miners of a nearby pit.

The proprietor of the mine objected to this, upon which the captain commanding the company informed the magistrate that the soldiers from then on would proceed to his private shower bath. The miners' showers were immediately thrown open again to the soldiers.

ELECTIONS AS THEY ARE HELD IN OLD QUEBEC

Montreal, Feb. 5.—Some 30 people in prison, one returning officer beaten up, his ballot box stolen and the poll out of action, were this morning's developments in the provincial general elections in Montreal. Twelve alleged telegraphers were arrested in the Mercier division early in the forenoon and 14 were held by the police in St. Lawrence. In the latter division a riot broke out at the polling station. The deputy returning officer, Antonio Tarte was badly beaten up, his polling box stolen and the polling station somewhat damaged. The result was that the station was closed and the election in that district consequently disfranchised.

The alleged telegraphers arrested in Mercier division were taken into custody on the representations of Adolphe L'Archeveque, opposition candidate, who declared he detected them armed with lists of names allegedly for impersonation purposes. The 14 arrests in St. Lawrence were on charges of attempted impersonation.

J. L. Bourbonnier, secretary of the Montreal tramways union, alleged that a crowd of about 35 men broke into his store on Mount Royal avenue, this morning, and stole several lists of re-

Coal Production 1922

Figures for the coal production of Alberta for the year 1922 show an increase over the previous year, in spite of strike conditions.

Divided between the several grades of coal, the year's production was as follows: Domestic, 3,985,981 tons; bituminous, 2,214,273; sub-bituminous, 635,073; anthracite, 40,417.

Coal Operators Delegation

A delegation of coal operators met Premier Greenfield during the past week to discuss with him the changes in the compensation act proposed by the Alberta Federation of Labor.

Fairs Convention

At the annual convention of the Fairs Association of Alberta held at Calgary a week ago, the following officers were elected: President, Rufus Cates, Oyen; Vice-president, H. Huxley, Lloydminster; Secretary-treasurer, A. Galbraith, Supt. of Fairs and Institutes; Directors, Mrs. T. H. Armour, Chauvin, William Robertson, Stoney Plain, J. G. Clark, Irma, G. T. Day, Stettin, E. L. Richardson, Calgary, Hugh McIntosh, Macleod, John Wilson, Innisfail, H. F. Nestor, Cessford.

The convention was a successful one, a large number of delegates being present. In a message to the convention, Hon. Mr. Hoadley emphasized the success which had been attained under the new system of administering the fairs as arranged by the Department with advice from a committee of the 1922 convention and spoke also of the importance of considering exhibits for their educational value rather than merely for the money that was in it.

Agricultural Meetings

Institute meetings for farmers under the auspices of the department of agriculture are now the order of the day throughout the province. A series of these meetings has recently been held in the central part of the province, and other series are being arranged for the south part of the province to be addressed by Prof. Murray district agriculturist of Medicine Hat. Mr. L. F. French district agriculturist of Lethbridge, and H. S. Pearson of the dairy branch. These meetings will start at Macleod on Tuesday, Feb. 13, and will be held at Monarch, Nobleford and Barons, and Coalhurst during that week, at Taber, Coaldale, Magrath, Stirling and Commerce the following week, and at Turin, Hillspring and Glenwoodville during the week of March 5. Subjects to be discussed will include mixed farming, soil cultivation, forage crops, livestock, dairying and any other topic of local interest.

Export Liquor Houses to Close

All export liquor houses in the province will go out of business permanently on March 1. Attorney-general Brownlee has announced that the government has passed the necessary order-in-council under the Canada Temperance Act asking the Dominion government to take the proper steps. The provisions of this Act are that the Federal government will issue an order prohibiting export of liquor from the province on a date set by the province.

Co-ordinate Police Work

Co-ordination of police work in the three prairie provinces as between the provincial and federal police is now under discussion and may be taken up at a conference held following the adjourning of the legislature. The matter has been taken up by Attorney-general Brownlee with the other western provinces.

Strike of Wet Gas

A heavy flow of wet gas has been struck in the well of the Illinois-Alberta Oil Co., in the oil fields west of Okotoks, south-west of Calgary. According to published reports of engineers the flow is very heavy in gasoline supply.

Should Put Up Ice

Producers of cream in the province are advised to take advantage now of the opportunity of putting up a good supply of ice for the coming summer months. Taking into consideration the fact that special grade quality cream depends to a great extent on low temperature, and the prospect of a continuance in the province of a strict government grading system, the producers of cream will readily realize the importance of having on hand for the summer a good supply of ice. Now is the time to harvest it.

In the Legislature

During the past week the legislature has witnessed a debate on the resolution of Hon. J. R. Boyle urging action in connection with discriminatory freight rates between east and west. Owing to the illness of Hon. Mr. Boyle, the resolution was taken up by J. C. Bowen, of the opposition. An amendment introduced by the government benches provided an endorsement of the action already taken by the government in the matter. After several speakers on all sides had been heard, Premier Greenfield suggested that a committee be appointed to bring a joint resolution on which the house could agree. The committee named included Hon. J. E. Brownlee, N. S. Smith and A. E. Claypool, of the government side; Hon. J. L. Cote, Hon. C. W. Cross and J. C. Bowen, of the opposition, and W. G. Johnson from the independents.

Other resolutions standing on the order paper in the name of Mr. Boyle called for an explanation from the government why the wheat board legislation was not put into effect, and why certain extensions to the E.D. & B.C. authorized last session have not yet been built. The first has been

GRANUM NEWS

(From Our Own Correspondent)

The sale of home cooking conducted by the Women's Institute on Saturday last was a financial success. This innovation on the part of this organization is a source of much anticipation on the part of the large bachelor population of this district who are now replacing the soda biscuits and sour dough bread of their Sunday table with the dainties of the cuisine of the fair sex procured at these sales. And indeed we have heard more than one benedict entreat his spouse to attend the sale and secure a cake or pie for the Sabbath as the day is one on which he gets little exercise and prefers safety first. But gossip has it that the designs are on the bachelor to bring him under subjection as the dames realize that the way to a man's heart is through his stomach.

A very pleasant evening was spent at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. Dimm last Friday, when a number of their friends met with them.

That Granum is alive and wishes to be compos mentis is no joke. Just listen to this, then call my bet, if you dare. On Monday last we, notice I said "we," because we women must be reckoned with, had the following nominees placed in the field for municipal honors and any one of the bunch that may be selected will meet with our approval, so here they are irrespective of age or color, but with full and deliberate consideration for the several vacancies: For mayor, J. H. Boyle, L. H. Cochlin; for councillors, C. Reynolds, P. O'Brien, J. E. Boyle, L. Kelli-cut, D. McMahon and H. Yokerson; for trustees, T. J. Dolan, L. H. Cochlin and J. Blair. Mayor, three councillors and two trustees are to be elected.

Miss Beatrice Smith was the recipient of many presents Monday evening when she entertained a large circle of her girl friends on the occasion of her sixteenth birthday. The girls sure had a royal time at Bee's party and wish she had a birthday every week.

Mrs. Fred Patterson and baby from Craigmyle are visiting at the home of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. P. S. Clarke.

On Sunday morning a boy and girl were born to Mr. and Mrs. McClelland, but shortly after birth the boy died. However, the mother and baby girl are doing nicely, and Mr. and Mrs. McClelland are receiving the felicitations of their many friends here.

Mr. and Mrs. Kenny MacGregor are always at home to their friends, be they young or old, or a mixture of both, so when the bride of twenty summers and her spouse, and the bride and groom of but a short month, with others ranging in between, met with them Monday night you may rest assured that guests ad hosts had what you call "one good time."

The whist drive conducted by the R. C. Ladies' Aid, last Wednesday night, was largely attended and much enjoyed. Mrs. Wm. McCorkie was the successful winner of the first prize.

Our canary died a natural death; the cat ate it.

The nominees for mayor, council and school board, it is reported, are busy speech writing, preparing for the mass meeting which should take place in the Opera House Saturday afternoon or evening. This is only a consideration due the citizens by those seeking these offices of honor and responsibility. We want the taxes reduced; how are you going to do it? Let us hear!

Miss Mildred MacLeod of the Canadian Bank of Commerce staff here returned Tuesday night from Gleichen where she spent the past three weeks visiting friends.

Constable and Mrs. Swain were the principals in a surprise party Tuesday night, when they were taken quite unaware by a large number of their friends, who, recalling the fact that the date was that of the twenty-sixth anniversary of the nuptials of this genial pair, swarmed down on their otherwise quiet home and made it just buzz with fun and laughter, and when all the good things provided by the invaders were placed on the table there was sure the evidence as well as the atmosphere of a real wedding festival.

The I. O. O. F. are giving a dance in the Opera House Monday night, which will be one of the best of the season and a real treat. Lunch will be served at the hotel.

THEY'RE OFF!
BIG CONTEST
GOING GOOD

The Contestants in The Times' Big Subscription Contest all got away to an even start on Monday, February 5th, and are putting forth every effort toward final success. The public generally appears to be catching the spirit of the contest and are responding liberally and good naturedly to the importuning of the various contenders. Interest, of course, will be enhanced after the ending of the first two weeks' period for which the special $25.00 prize is to be given for the contestant securing the most votes or points up to Saturday evening, February 17, and when the standing of contestants will be published weekly.

Much publicity has been given the contest, which has naturally resulted in the public generally expecting to be asked for subscriptions, etc., and thus making the work easier for the contenders.

Contestants have made entry from Macleod, Granum, Ardenville, Glenwoodville and Orton and the management of The Macleod Times believes that interest evoked in these communities will result in arrears subscriptions being fairly well cleared up on the Times list and in many new subscribers being enrolled as well as renewal subscriptions being kept up to date.

BANFF WINTER CARNIVAL

BANFF, Alta., Feb. 4.—Ten days of every variety of winter sport with the climax of one hundred mile championship dog grand prix race and a buffalo barbecue will be the program of the Banff Winter Carnival, which will take place from February 24th to March 5th. These added to the fact that the Trimble-Murfin Motion Picture Production Company has placed its outfit of one hundred husky dogs, seventeen police dogs, inclusive of the famous film dog, Strongheart, and his bride-to-be, Julie, and several packs of wolves, at the disposal of the carnival committee, will make this event one of the most unique and interesting in the history of Canadian winter sports. Nature, too, has taken a master hand in preparing a marvelous setting for the carnival. Banff, the great national playground, set like some exquisite jewel in a coronet of towering mountains, to many, is more attractive than ever in her winter garb of dazzling snow. William Faverham, the famous actor, who visited Banff last week, remarked, "I've been in the Alps and Pyrenees, but I have never seen anything that can compare with Banff in winter beauty. The people of Canada should make marvelous Banff, the St. Moritz of Canada."

At the foot of the famous toboggan slide on Tunnel Mountain an ice palace with glistening towers and iridescent arch has been completed and during carnival week this will be ablaze with vari-colored lights and the center of a nightly display of fireworks. Work has been begun on the five-mile triangular race course on the beautiful Lake Minnewanka, where the dog race will be run. This event will be unique in the history of long distance dog racing, as the dogs will be in sight in every stage of the continuous one hundred mile race. It is expected that owing to the smoothness of this course and the fact that the entrants of this race include seven of the most famous dog teams in the world from The Pas, Manitoba, that world records will be beaten. The teams entered include four of the winning teams of the 1922 and 1923 races and three "runners-up" from The Pas, these proceeding to Banff immediately after The Pas races. The Grand Prix will be divided in four prizes as follows: First, one thousand dollars; second, seven hundred and fifty; third, three hundred; and last, two hundred and fifty.

On March 3, Laurence Trimble, director and tutor of Strongheart, will give an exhibition of that dog's marvellous intelligence along with that of "Julie," and seventeen other police dogs, all carnival visitors being asked to attend. Invitations have been sent by wire to a number of famous writers and editors, and already the carnival committee has received acceptances from the following: Arthur S. Hoffman, Editor Adventure; Charles Peters of Life; Talbot Munday, a well-known magazine writer and Albert Britt, Editor of Outing.

Negotiations are under way with four or five ladies' teams to compete for the world's championship lady hockey team cup donated by the Alpine Club of Canada and it is expected that lady teams from Calgary, Fernie, Edmonton, Camrose and the Amazons of Vancouver, who won the cup at last year's carnival, will enter the competition, the games being played carnival week. In addition to these features, other winter sports will be curling, skating, snow-shoeing, ski-jumping, ski-running, ski-joring, tobogganing, trap-shooting, swimming in the hot sulphur springs of the government baths, sleighing, fancy and art skating and dancing.

"How do you like your new chief, Mollie?" "Not so bad, only he's bigoted." "How'd you mean, bigoted?" "He seems to think that words can only be spelled his way."

BROOKE TRAVERS, SON OF MILIONAIRE BANANA KING, ONE OF LEADERS OF REVOLUTION AGAINST GEN. CAMPOS, DICTATOR PRESIDENT, SAN MANANA!

Wealthy Young American Drawn Into the Affair as a Result of His Love for Daughter of Dr. Rivas, Insurgent Leader

Authentic information received in this city yesterday by Sam Travers, president of the Pacific Fruit Company, at No. 342 South Water street, from Henry Bolton, the company's manager at San Manana, indicates that another revolution is brewing, if indeed, it has not already started. It is hinted that Brooke Travers, son of the banana king, who recently disappeared, following the sailing of Dr. Carlos Rivas, well-known as a Latin-American "liberator," is taking a hand in the affair.

It is reported that Brooke Travers met Juanita, the beautiful daughter of Rivas, during their stay in this city, and that a mutual attachment was the result. It is said further that Mr. Travers was in complete ignorance of his son's infatuation for Miss Rivas and that on hearing of the affair he threatened to disinherit him. Mr. Travers, when questioned today, declined to make any statement regarding the affair.

Trouble has been brewing at San Manana for some time, according to consular reports. Dr. Rivas, it appears, has been in violent opposition to the rule of General Campos, the dictator president of San Manana, and as a result of his activities he was exiled. Coming to this city, Dr. Rivas has been in daily consultation for some weeks with his adherents, and it is said that he has been able to procure both money and ammunition in abundance for the prosecution of his plans to unseat General Campos, who is said to be one of the most tyrannical, pompous and incompetent presidents ever chosen to preside over the affairs of that storm-tossed republic.

Travers Leaves in Disguise
According to all accounts, Brooke Travers, after his meeting with Juanita Rivas here, and despite the opposition of Dr. Rivas, followed the Rivas party to San Manana several weeks ago aboard the steamship Vesuvius. Brooke, it is said, was disguised as a member of the crew, and he was accompanied by Mike Jones, a chauffeur who sought in vain to collect a bill of $60 he claims Brooke owes him for taxi fares. How the pair will fare if they fall into the hands of General Campos, who hates Americans, is problematical.

Rivas Has Chance to Win
Mr. Travers admitted to a reporter today that Dr. Rivas' chance of un-seating General Campos was excellent, inasmuch as he is reported to have several thousand men. He said further that General Campos' army, though large, was undisciplined and that ammunition was lacking. He refused to venture a prediction as to the outcome of the revolution or to state what part therein the Pacific Fruit Company, which is favorable to the Campos administration, is taking in the present disturbance.

Outcome Shown on Screen
The outcome of the revolution will be shown in "The Dictator," a new Paramount picture, to be shown at the Empress Theatre next Wednesday for two days. Wallace Reid is seen as Brooke Travers and Lila Lee as Juanita Rivas. It is said that the principal features of the San Manana revolution have been pictured with fidelity by James Cruze, the director while the big battle scenes have been adequately photographed by Karl Brown. Every thrilling scene of the recent revolution has been graphically presented.

NEW GIBSON FILM IS FILLED WITH THRILLS

The crumbling ledges of Montezuma's famous old castle in Arizona furnish some unusual exterior settings in "The Galloping Kid," Hoot Gibson's latest Universal starring vehicle, which comes to the Empress Theatre next Friday and Saturday.

Simplex Cox, a tramp cowboy, sometimes called the "Galloping Kid," is an extremely interesting character who drifts from one job to another, always gaining sufficient subsistence by his ready wit and quicker trigger finger. It is a part that only a Hoot Gibson could do justice to.

The story is one of the famous "Missfit" series from the pen of William H. Hanby, adapted to the screen by A. P. Younger and directed by Nat Ross.

The leading feminine role is played by Edna Murphy, who has supported the star in many past Universal successes.

Nat Ross, while directing a scene from a lofty ledge on Montezuma's ancient adobe castle, had a very narrow escape from possible fatal injury when the crumbling adobe gave way beneath his feet, starting a landslide. Ross succeeded in gaining his feet just before the slide, gaining momentum, went roaring over the side of the ledge to the castle's base two hundred feet below.

GIBSON REAL HE MAN STAR

Busting bucking bronchos has been Hoot Gibson's long suit ever since he was ankle high to a grasshopper. He is the champion horseman of the screen and there is no one to say him nay. In "The Galloping Kid," his latest Universal starring vehicle, directed by Nat Ross, coming to the Empress Theatre next Friday and Saturday, Gibson's equestrian ability cannot be disproved by even an audience of the ex-Kaiser's ex-Uhlans.

"The Galloping Kid" is an entirely different brand of western. The central figure in the story is a tramp cowboy who unexpectedly falls heir to a job as chaperon to a girl who is far too pretty to live in the cactus country. So the chaperon marries her to save her from the rest of the desert galeos.

The leading feminine role is played by Edna Murphy who makes a very delightful opposite for Hoot Gibson. Others in the supporting cast are Lionel Belmore, Leon Barry, Jack Walters, Percy Challenger and Steve Clement.

A novel feature in "The Galloping Kid" is the fact that it was for this picture that the famous Montezuma castle in Arizona was photographed for the first time by a motion picture camera.

"ADVENTURES OF TARZAN" OPENS AT THE EMPRESS ON FRIDAY FEBRUARY 23rd

"Adventures of Tarzan," starring Elmo Lincoln and pictured from the concluding chapters of "The Return of Tarzan" by Edgar Rice Burroughs is the newest serial to be booked by Manager Cutler. It will open at the Empress on Friday, February 23, and one episode of two reels each will be shown thereafter for fourteen weeks on this same day. This serial, produced in fifteen chapters and thirty-one reels, is said to be the most wonderful wild animal episode play ever made. Sponsored by Weiss Brothers Numa Pictures Corporation and produced by Great Western Producing Company, "Adventures of Tarzan" was directed by Robert F. Hill, adapted for the screen by Hill and Lillian Valentine and photographed by a battery of cameras under the direction of Joe Mayer and Jerry Ash. It presents in his original character which he made famous in "Tarzan of the Apes" and "The Romance of Tarzan," Elmo Lincoln, the giant actor noted for his daring stunts in many successful serials. The serial offers an engrossing story of suspense, mystery, romance and thrills laid in the heart of the African jungle. Every episode contains a host of wild animals, including Tantor, the elephant Numa the lion, Regent the puma, the famous ape, Joe Martin, and crocodiles, leopards, monkeys, apes, hyenas etc. These beasts figure prominently in a series of astounding thrills, in many of which Elmo Lincoln faces death in bare handed fights with lions and leopards. A strong cast of prominent serial players support Lincoln throughout the entire production headed by Louise Lorraine, hailed as the most daring heroine of the screen. Among the other players may be mentioned Frank Whitson, Charles Inslee, Lillian Worth, George Monberg, Percy Pembroke and others. The tremendous popularity of the Edgar Rice Burroughs' Tarzan stories combined with the following of Elmo Lincoln in his role of Tarzan should bring record crowds to the Empress Theatre every week to witness the unfolding of "Adventures of Tarzan."

"THE DICTATOR" REAL DRAMA
Richard Harding Davis' Story of Lively Revolution in Latin America Is Famous

Wallace Reid has star role

The internal disturbances of certain romantic and ebullient South American republics, which have for years furnished the American press and humorous writers with material for exciting dispatches or clever, humorous discussions, were placed in the hall of fame by the plays of the late Richard Harding Davis, who was virtually their literary spokesman.

"The Dictator," which comes to the Empress Theatre next Wednesday and Thursday as a Paramount offering with Wallace Reid in the star role, is one of this type by this author. It is the play which Willie Collier made famous on the stage and in which Mr. Davis paints an exciting picture of volcanic life in the Latin-American continent.

Walter Woods, an experienced scenarist, translated the play to screen terms, which meant modifying it somewhat, bringing certain incidents down to date and generally applying the modern brush to the canvas, which is, however, still fresh and alluring.

Lila Lee, leading woman, has the role of Juanita, dainty daughter of Dr. Rivas, a self-styled "liberator," played by Theodore Kosloff. Mr. Reid, as Brooke Travers, falls in love with her and then the trouble begins. From Los Angeles the scene shifts to a tiny Latin-American republic where a bitter war between rebels and regulars is waged. James Cruze, a veteran Paramount director, handled the megaphone.

HOW TO PROVE IT

An American in dear old London was bragging about his auto. He ended his eulogy by declaring:

"It runs so smoothly you can't feel it, so quietly that you can't hear it; it has such perfect ignition you can't smell it, and as for speed—boy! you can't see it!"

"But, my word old dear," interrupted the Briton anxiously, "how do you know the bally thing is there?"

TENNESSEE CLAFFIN'S ADVENTUROUS CAREER

This generation knows nothing of Tennessee Claffin; the preceding generation knew more; but to the generation before that her name was a household word. In some respects she was one of the most remarkable women produced in the United States.

She was born in an Ohio hotel; she had an early career that probably would not bear the closest scrutiny. She rose to fame and wealth and influence in her own country. Then she left for England and died there a few days ago as Lady Cook, renowned for her benevolences, honored for her devotion to the cause of woman suffrage, and for her help to struggling geniuses of all descriptions.

She was a curious combination of Cassie Chadwick, Carrie Nation and Lady Burdette-Coutts. At one time she was described by Inspector Byrnes of New York as an adventurer, and undoubtedly she was of an adventurous spirit, but whether the word was properly applied in the common understanding of the term is not so certain.

Sold Patent Medicines
Tennessee Claffin's mother was a spiritualist, and her father an impoverished reformer. She was the last of ten children and was born in 1840. Her mother announced that Tennie had a great healing gift, being able to cast out devils by the laying on of hands.

She was a very pretty and attractive girl and traveled through the more gullible districts of the United States selling a patent medicine modestly called "The Elixir of Life." She and her sister Victoria then broke away from the family and continued to shake down the populace on their own account. When they were not selling their dope they were giving vent to the most extraordinary ideas about women. They thought women should have the same social and political rights as men because, they argued, women were just as intelligent as men. Such heresies did not help them to sell their medicines, but it did tend to make them known.

First Women Brokers
In 1869 they arrived in New York, Victoria with a husband named Dr. Woodhull, who presently was laid aside. Then they took a sensational step. They opened a brokerage house—Woodhull and Claffin—the first ever operated by women. It was generally supposed that they were merely piquante figureheads and that Jim Fisk or Jay Gould, or even Commodore Vanderbilt, was the secret adviser. Tennessee used to intimate that her shrewd trades were mainly the result of information she received from the spirit world. At any rate the firm prospered. The next year Victoria ran for the Presidency and Tennessee for Congress. It was a mere gesture in favor of woman suffrage and brought them much advertise-

ing. Then they started a weekly paper, Woodhull and Claffin's weekly, devoted to scandal, politics and religion.

Disgraced Beecher

It was in this wretched sheet that the Beecher-Tilton sensation was presented to the public. Previously there had been much gossip about the famous preacher, but never a public hint. The Claffin sisters represented Theodore Tilton, husband of the woman, as a greatly wronged man. He was a friend of theirs and they set out to ruin Beecher. They succeeded, but they also ruined their brokerage business, though their paper had a great sale. Many were the writs issued against them. Several times they were arrested, but never once were they convicted. They put themselves at the head of the women's suffrage movement. At that time it was difficult for an unknown and unaccompanied woman to rent a room in a hotel. She could not be served alone in the great restaurants, nor admitted without a male escort to the theatres. The Claffin sisters campaigned with some success against these discriminations.

Triumphed in England

Then in 1876 they left for England and, curiously enough, Conservative England received them with open arms. Victoria acquired her third husband, and Tennessee her first. He was Sir Francis Cook, who had made a fortune out of Indian shawls, and had a fine London home, as well as a magnificent estate in Portugal. Once more the sisters went into business this time as "Lady Cook and Co." Their brokerage firm was again a success. In the course of time Lady Cook became more and more identified with woman suffrage. She was the chief financial backer of the Pankhurst campaign, and when war broke out asked permission to raise a battalion of women. The great fortune she inherited from her husband she spent wisely and generously in philanthropies. She became a patroness of the arts, and for years before her death her early and more adventurous years had been completely forgotten, and when she passed away she was mourned as though one of the most revered pillars of Victorianism had fallen.

PURE POLITICS

"And whom did you vote for, Miss Sophy?"

"Well, you see, the Conservative candidate was simply stunningly good looking. But the Liberal had always been splendid to his family, so I marked both ballots, closed my eyes, shuffled them, put one in the box and tore up the other. Nothing could be fairer than that."—The Passing Show.

The Macleod Times announces the inauguration of a worth-while subscription contest.

For some time the management of The Times has felt that the population of this town and district warrants a larger paid-up circulation than this increase paid-up circulation. The contest will be conducted in the usual manner regarding such efforts to increase paid-up circulation. For each new $2.00 paid-up subscription turned in by a contestant 2000 votes or points will be credited; for each $2.00 renewal subscription 1000 votes will be credited the contestant and for each $2.00 arrears collected by a contestant 3000 votes will be credited.

Any lady, married or single, is eligible to enter the contest, in fact men and boys are not barred.

The Times management suggests that contestants enter their names at once so that the contest may be started without delay. When 20 contestants shall have handed in their names
the date of the beginning of the contest will be announced to each so that all may get away to an even start.

The Times management would suggest that contestants be prepared to put forth their best efforts in the first stages of the campaign as their ultimate standing will probably depend on consistently putting forth all their energy from start to finish.

The Prizes

The prizes aggregate at retail prices $723.50. In no case is the value of a prize inflated beyond the regular retail price as plainly marked on each by dealers from whom the goods were purchased. In other words The Times paid the prices according as goods were marked for sale. There are 18 prizes:

First prize, $200.00 Victrola Gramo-Phone; second, $123.50 worth of standard silverware; third prize $100 solitaire diamond ring; fourth $70.00 wrist watch; fifth, $51.00 worth of Adam Pattern Community plate; 6th,
$37.00 Waltham Gold Filled Wrist
Watch, and in order as named: $27.00 wrist watch, $25.00 wrist watch, $23 wrist watch, $12.50 lavalliere, $10.00 ring, $9.00 ring, $7.00 pendant, $7.00 dresser clock, $6.50 real leather vanity case, $6.50 pearl ring, $6.00 bar pin, $6.00 gold brooch—18 prizes in all.

Read the above list which gives a full and detailed description of prizes. In addition to the above for contestants winning less than a $20.00 prize 10 per cent. of the money they collect will be awarded them as a consolation prize.

Awarding of Prizes

In the awarding of the prizes the contestants having the greatest number of votes would receive first prize and so on down through the list. In case of a tie of two or more contestants for a prize, which is unlikely, owner of the prize would be decided by a bean-jar guessing contest. A tie is an altogether unlikely contingency, however.

The jewelry and silverware prizes may be seen in R. W. Russell's Jewelry Store window, where they are on display. The $200.00 Victrola may be seen for a few days at Ferguson's
Drug Store and later will be on display at The Times office.

The Times management reserves the right to add a further prize or prizes, under conditions to be stipulated by the management, to the above list as the contest progresses.

The Victrola Gram-o-Phone is on Display at A. D. Ferguson's Drug Store. Silverware and Jewelry are on display in R. W. Russell's window.

The Times specially invites contestants to enter this contest from: Macleod, Granum, Glenwoodville, Ardenville, Brocket, Ewelme, Monarch, Orton, Pearce, Spring Point, Stand Off, Waterton Lakes and Wellsville.

NO PERSON IN THE EMPLOY OF THE MACLEOD TIMES IS ELIGIBLE TO ENTER THIS CONTEST

REGENERATING ECONOMY.

"Financial conditions throughout the world point to the necessity of caution in the assumption and the extension of public liabilities. Important commitments have necessitated financing on a large scale by this Province during the past few years. While this task has been successfully accomplished, it is recognized that the avoidance of additional burdens is now a matter of importance. The recent decision of a number of municipalities not to proceed with radial railway projects at the present time, and the vote recorded against money by-laws in the various municipalities, indicate the trend of public opinion in this respect."

In the foregoing paragraph of the Speech from the Throne at the opening of the present session of the Ontario Legislature the importance of economy in the conduct of public business is referred to in terms that by no means over-emphasize it. The avoidance of additional burdens upon the people of this Province is a matter of urgency. We are glad to see that the recent adverse voting of municipalities on money by-laws is interpreted as a sign that public opinion has swung round to the side of retrenchment.

That the world is once more relearning that economy is a thing of merit is to be read in the statements of public financiers everywhere, and in the annual messages of most financial institutions. These admonish caution in regard to all new projects, the curtailing of expenditures, as far as possible even upon necessary services, and the dropping off of all that is unnecessary. Nor is it only by these mentors' crying from the housetops that public opinion is being formed and stiffened in behalf of economy. That more potent instructor, grim Necessity, has called a halt to extravagance. How many of the free spenders of five years ago are now in straits for money! The riot had to come to an end sometime. Investors and lenders cannot be expected to keep pace with reckless spenders. The old saws about thrift were bound to make their way back into the respect of the public, not so much because the people of this generation love wisdom as because they have found that there is no royal road to "prosperity."

People must work, and they must save if they are to be of much use to themselves or to the State. The man who works cheerfully and spends prudently is a prop to the security and the welfare of his country. Men who have the ability and the necessity to earn their living should be required by law to do so, and should be provided with an opportunity to do so. The able-bodied man who prefers to live on the money his wife can earn as a washerwoman to laboring himself for $12 a week should be put to work under a public taskmaster. Labor unions have their own great field of usefulness, but they are not so foolish as to take on their shoulders the burden of supporting the men who remain idle because the chance to work does not always carry the union rate of wages with it. The capital-hating Marxists cannot show the honest worker why he should not save a part of his earnings. It is not loafing nor squandering that the wolf can be kept from the door.

As distinct from merely sound business there is a so-called Modern Business that some people speak about in terms of extravagance and mysticism, a thing of which they profess to be able to give the mathematical formula and to lay bare the "psychology," faded word of meaning vague. Upon premises and plant in many cases many millions are spent where hundreds of thousands would serve better and then the price of the output has to bear the heavy overhead charges included that for risk of the equipment having to be scrapped if suddenly made obsolete by some new invention or discovery. Profits had their heyday in the wartime and succeeding years. They must now be reasonable if business is not to be stifled.

In the matter of economy Government must lead the way. It is unnecessary for politicians in office to go on telling the people that stagnation in Europe is unfavorable to trade revival on this side of the Atlantic. The people know that, and they cannot get their minds off the fact, which more nearly concerns them, namely, that trade is not what it ought to be here. Let governments in this country attend to that. Let them ease the shoulders of domestic trade by lightening the burdens of taxation. Both in the Dominion and in the Province of Ontario public expenditures can be reduced without detriment to any interest and with great benefit to all. Governments must retrench. Scores of millions can thereby be saved. Of still more importance will be the example and the relief thus given to the business men and producers of the country. By lessening their controllable expenditure and by equitably and fosteringly redistributing their taxation Governments, especially the Dominion Government, can put new heart into our trade and industry.

MORE TRADE FOR BRITAIN.

Viscount Long, prominent British Unionist, and member of the Coalition Government for a time, believes the solution of British unemployment is in extension of Imperial preferences. The British free traders have always valued the European and other foreign markets more than the overseas Empire trade. But Continental Europe is being upset by continuous quarrels, and by the practical economic ruin of Russia, Austria, Germany and other sections.

Disraeli once remarked that even if Europe did go into decay, Britain would stay strong because of her colonies overseas. But most of these overseas parts of the Empire have protective tariffs-tariffs that work against British producers in competitive lines. As between home interest and Imperial trade, home interest will triumph. But there is plenty of room for more preference to British producers in lines that do not materially conflict with home interest. Canada buys only $135,000,000 worth of goods from Britain—mainly manufactures—and about $500,000,000 worth from the United States industrial producers. We could help Britain, and help ourselves by more attention to encouraging British trade. A campaign in Canada to encourage use of British products would be worth while.

The Empire has large resources of raw material, and it ought to be used co-operatively for building up the Empire. The band of preferences now existing helps, but it does not go far enough. Britain will either have to export labor, or more goods, and if the overseas parts of the Empire adjusted their consumption properly, they could absorb both, with no damage, but positive benefit to themselves. Our chief agricultural market is in Britain, and to improve conditions for our farmers, we ought to enable Britain to sell more to us.

In connection with the armed man who was seen driving a Ford car in Piscadilly the other day, the latest theory is that he had run out of petrol and was just frightening the pet on and with a revolver—Exchange.

THANKS, PRAISE AND PRAYER

With grateful hearts to Thee, O loving Father,
Our thanks arise, for Thou has been our Guide;
Throughout the year which now is at its passing,
Thou has been ever by Thy children's side.

With joyful hearts to Thee, our Lord and Saviour,
Our songs of praise beyond this world shall wend;
For Thou hast showered on us Thy choicest blessings,
So to Thy throne our hymns should now ascend.

With thankfulness and praise we stand before Thee,
On bended knees we breathe the fervent prayer;
That through the coming year Thou wilt protect us,
Keep us securely in Thy loving care.
Dec. 29. —Christina W. Partridge.

WHAT MADE ME HAPPY

"I was congratulating myself that I had passed the winter without catching a cold, when I got one at the beginning of last May. It was because I was run down. Being run down I had some trouble in getting rid of this cold. I was a nervous wreck. I would wake up regularly mornings feeling that some terrible calamity would take place. Although we were comfortably off, I felt sure my husband was going to lose everything. The children worried me. If they made the least noise, I would get into a terrible temper. I would scold them so that I am sure they hated me. I would be mad with myself after it was over and make up my mind never to let it happen again. I would go to bed at night and begin to think and picture dreadful things which might happen to me and my family. I would lay awake for hours, sometimes until daylight, until I was so weak that I could scarcely raise my head. I would waken next day just as tired as when I laid down. After a while I got so that I didn't care what happened. The children annoyed me and I wouldn't have cared if they had left me for good. I felt that it was only a matter of time before I would lose my mind. I knew that my sympathy was due to a run down condition and that if I could only get something to build me up, I might be all right. I knew that there must be some good tonic but most of them made such foolish claims that I was afraid of them. Happening one day to run across a leaflet about Carnol, I was impressed with the simple way this preparation was described, so I made up my mind I would try it. I did and today I am the happiest and healthiest woman living. I haven't a care in the world. Instead of running away from me, my children are now with me all the time. My husband tells me that my disposition is as near an angel's as any human being's can be, but of course he is prejudiced. I don't believe I have a nerve in my body now."

Carnol is sold by your druggist, and if you can conscientiously say, after you have tried it, that it hasn't done you any good, return the empty bottle to him and he will refund your money. 6-622

CHEMISTRY DIVISION WORK

The extent, value, and importance of the work in which the Dominion Chemist, Dr. F. T. Shutt, is engaged, are well exemplified in the interim report of the division for the year ending March 31, 1922. From this we learn that a total of 4,122 samples were received from all parts of the country, during the year at the Dominion laboratories for free examination, including 2,190 samples from the Meat and Canned Foods division of the Health of Animals branch of the Ottawa Department of Agriculture. The results of all these examinations are given in the report, which has been obtained free of charge from the publications branch, Ottawa. Agriculturally they include investigation of work with soils, fertilizers, feeding stuffs, sugar beets, field roots, silage and forage crops, waters, etc., but, as Dr. Shutt says, in a very real sense the division acts as a bureau of chemistry for the entire government service, analytical work and research having been undertaken not only for all the branches of the Agricultural Department but also for the Post Office Department and for the Departments of the Interior, Customs and Excise, Marine and Fisheries, Naval and Military, and for the several commissions and boards in connection with the soldiers' re-establishments and settlement. A specially important line of work comprises the chemical and microscopical examination of samples from the packing houses and canneries throughout the Dominion, thus ensuring as far as possible that the food products of these industries conform to the government standards of purity.

THE TEMPLE

O love immortal, beautiful and olden,
Our eyes thy walls of splendour soon shall see;
We build for all a temple grand and golden
With silent hammers of eternity.

Come, let us build a city, O my brothers,
The loveliest and holiest dream of time;
The joy and inspiration of all others
Unique for beauty in an age sublime.

Come, let us help with deeds of love and pity,
The toil-worn children in a world forlorn;
O brothers, let us build the golden city
Come, let us rear the temple of the morn.

—Albert Durrant Watson.

"CAST THY BURDEN UPON THE LORD"

Arise, sad heart, shake off thy fears,
For "God shall wipe away all tears,"
In the Kingdom of His Grace,
He, you loved has found a place,
Has found the home where Christ doth dwell;

The home that waits for you as well;
Home, where all is love and peace;
Home, where pain and death shall cease.

Oh! murmur not, for this we know,
Grief is sent to measure love,
Our God will ever mercy show,
Fitting souls for life above.

So, weary heart, shake off thy fears,
For "God shall wipe away all tears,"
Holy Spirit! Lord defend,
Give us faith unto the end.

SENSATIONAL NOVEL IS AGITATING FRANCE

France is one of those broad-minded countries capable of more than one excitement at a time. The German question is exciting the nation and it is also being excited by the publication of a novel called "La Garconne," whose author is Victor Marguerite, a commander of the Legion of Honor and author of many successful novels. In "La Garconne" he appears to have overstepped the somewhat elastic bounds of Parisian decency and a loud cry has gone forth that the book should be suppressed. Various societies have made the demand, including the League of Families, the anti-Prostitution League, and the Protestant League for the Redemption of Public Morality. The head of the League of Families is General Castelnau who had four sons killed during the war. Significant of the force of the attacks upon the book is the announcement that the next bulletin of the Legion of Honor will contain a notice of the expulsion of M. Marguerite. However, he holds in addition the cross of a commander of the Legion won by his father, General Marguerite, in the Franco-Prussian war as well as a special 1870 medal of which his father was the first recipient.

Written as Warning
"La Garconne" tells the story of a young French society girl who jilts her lover when she finds him in the company of a mistress whom he refuses to abandon. She quarrels with her family and determines to live her own way. She becomes debauched and frequents opium dens and brothels. Eventually she is married by an old friend and protector. The author insists that he has given a truthful picture of one stratum of Parisian society since the war, but that he has told only part of the truth. He wonders innocently what France would have done to him had he told all the truth. He says he wrote the novel to point out to women and particularly rich women who lack the training to fight their way through life possessed by working girls, the dangers with which they may fall victims. He insists that he has always been a feminist and contends that women should have the same rights political and otherwise that are possessed by men.

Caused by the War
Regarding mode of life in French society, Marguerite excuses them, partly because, "as every one knows the war was to blame. For four years or more, men, often the fathers of families, were away in the trenches while the women either attended the wounded or else helped to supply the armies with materials. Children then were likely to slip away from the comforts of home and be tempted to various places of entertainment, such as the dance halls and music halls, where much that was suggestive offered them distraction from the monotony of home life, and the girls began slowly to slide, until at the end of the war it was a secret to no one that many society girls had gone so far along the downward path that all hope of redemption seemed lost. My book fully describes such life, but shows the unhappy victim still has a chance to make good." On the other hand, the author recalls that he has not always been attacked, although he has written thirty-seven books all in the same vein, directing therein his criticism toward various classes of society.

The author admits that perhaps the book is too suggestive to be placed in the hands of schoolgirls and that it may be written about twenty years before its time. He asserts, however, that his only object in writing was to warn women of the pitfalls they might encounter and at the last, should they fall, to point a way of escape. His critics, on the other hand, assert that the book which has been translated into several languages is being used for propaganda purposes in Germany where it is held to show the degraded character of French society. While the principal book agency in France has refused to handle the book, the discussion about it has made it so widely read that even now another edition of 300,000 copies is going to press. It will also be dramatized, and unless the ban is placed upon it, the author will make a fortune out of it.

M. Marguerite's defenders are writers and critics, though some of the latter wholly disapprove the work. The grand old man of French letters Anatole France, is a champion of "La Garconne," and in a letter addressed to the Legion urged its members not to make themselves ridiculous by condemning the book. He pointed out that some of the greatest treasures of French literature were condemned when they were published and sometimes for many years afterward. As to the book itself he says that it is a true picture of the depravity which among the newly rich has attained unheard-of extremes. It is a painting of society created by the war, and the painter has kept well below reality. He describes the author as a man of taste.

ANGLICAN CLERGYMAN CREATES A SENSATION

Not for years has New York enjoyed such a church quarrel as has been created by Rev. Percy Stickney Grant, rector of the Church of the Ascension, one of the largest and most fashionable of New York's Anglican churches. Dr. Grant denies the divinity of Christ, and expresses disbelief in the miracles recorded by the Bible. Bishop Manning has taken him to task, has explained that his views are not those which Anglican clergy are bound to present to their hearers, and that unless he recants he must leave his pulpit. Dr. Grant has declined to resign, although he has been told that a prominent place awaits him in the Unitarian fold if he chooses to do so, and it seems inevitable that there will be a trial for heresy. Such trials are always most distressing to the members of the church involved and rarely have any beneficial result upon religion. On that account they are deplored and are avoided whenever possible. But the position of Dr. Grant may make one inevitable in the present case.

Betrothed to Divorce
It has been known for some time that Dr. Grant, one of the more eminent and popular of New York clergymen, holds broad views, and it now seems clear that they have been growing broader and broader all the time. A few months ago he reached the front pages of the newspapers, when his engagement to Mrs. Lydig, a divorced woman, was announced, only to be followed later by the statement of Bishop Manning that he could not countenance the marriage. This did not cause the clergyman to cancel the engagement for it still holds, and it is likely that in a short time the marriage will take place. It is quite possible that Dr. Grant might be relieved of his charge for the marriage. He evidently prefers to have to give up his pulpit on another ground. He has put himself forward as the champion of what he probably calls a rational religion. His sermon last Sunday closed with an impassioned appeal to his congregation to stand by him. The applause and the crowded building were more suggestive of a theatre when a popular play was being presented than of a church.

Growth of Ideas
Dr. Grant's arguments as presented in his sermon was broadly based upon the assertion that religious ideas, like other ideas, were not static, but were subject like all other ideas, to the process of growth and revision. He spoke of the famous Briggs' trial for heresy of some years ago when Dr. Briggs was expelled from the Baptist Church but later told Dr. Grant that those who had condemned him had later come round to his way of thinking. He quoted prominent Church of England clergymen to the effect that they could get along without the miraculous. He quoted psychologists like William James who said: "True ideas are those which we can assimilate, validate, corroborate and verify." Ideas that did not fulfill these tests should be rejected, no matter from what source they were derived. Certain ideas in the Bible could not stand the test and they should be swept away.

Debt to Psychoanalysts
He paid particular attention to discoveries of the psychoanalysts, and said that they had greatly advanced the frontiers of man's knowledge about himself. This knowledge was not in opposition to the essence of Christianity, but was in opposition to many beliefs that had become almost universal among Christian people through a misunderstanding of various parts of the Scriptures. It seemed to him that since clergymen spent most of their time studying the Bible and religious problems, and the new light thrown upon much that was dark as a result of modern research, they were under a very particular obligation to tell their congregations the results of their studies. If they found that they believed no longer what they had believed twenty or thirty years ago, they should stand up and say so. If they did, and if for doing so they should be expelled from the Church, where was the new light to come from? Were the congregations to remain in darkness, so that the son returning from college would laugh at his parents when they asked him to accompany them to church?

He asserted emphatically that when Christ was on earth He did not possess the powers of God. He did not claim to be God. The doctrine of the Virgin birth was not put forward in the teachings of the early church. It was obviously an after thought of theologians, like so many other doctrines that have in the course of years become incorporated in Christianity. His own view of religion was embodied in the command that one should love God with all his heart and mind and spirit, and love his neighbor as himself. He sounded a patriotic note when he asked his hearers to support an "American church which believes in freedom rather than in authority," and hinted at sinister financial interests that were concerned in having Christianity interpreted from their own selfish point of view.

PLEBISCITE ON LIQUOR QUESTIONS PRACTICALLY CERTAIN

Edmonton, Feb. 6.—All members of the legislative assembly will be called upon to give some help in determining the validity of the 51,000 signatures to the hotel men's petition asking the right to sell real beer. This was decided at the meeting of the special committee Tuesday morning appointed to scrutinize the petition and ascertain whether they are in order under the Direct Legislation Act.

Although a number of members of the house who are strongly prohibition advocates are canvassing for the retention of the present liquor act, an equally ardent faction is working strenuously for the submission of a referendum to the people of the province to see what is really desired in the way of liquor control. Some members of the cabinet are firmly of the opinion that the government should have a share of the profits being made out of the liquor business and it seems safe to predict that the plebiscite will be taken in the province this year on the question although probably not along the arbitrary lines asked for in the petition of the Alberta hotel men now before the house.

CALGARY SADDLERY IS DESTROYED BY FIRE

CALGARY, Feb. 7.—Fire totally destroyed the two top stories of the premises occupied by the Great West Saddlery company, 212 Ninth avenue west, at midnight, Tuesday, causing a loss roughly estimated at $200,000, partly covered by insurance. The fire lasted more than three hours. At one time the whole block was threatened with destruction. A gale of wind and sleet, blowing 28 miles an hour, fanned the flames more than 100 feet in the air, spreading myriads of sparks everywhere and making the efforts of the firemen engaged in checking the flames extremely difficult and hazardous. The fire originated in the machine shop on the third floor of the building. The Great West Saddlery company is owned by R. J. Hutchings, former president of the Calgary board of trade. The insurance on the stock alone is $125,000. The insurance on the building is not known.

60 DELEGATES AT VETERANS' CONVENTION IN EDMONTON

EDMONTON, Feb. 7.—Resolutions dealing with canteen funds, land settlement pensions, immigration, refunding of passage money, general re-establishment and a host of others of minor importance are being considered at the provincial convention of the Alberta G. W. V. A., which opened in the Memorial hall here on Wednesday afternoon. A proposal to reduce the provincial per capita tax of the association and to re-organize the command so that it can function without using reserve finances will be introduced by Calgary and is finding favor among some delegates from the various parts of the province.

Important Gathering

The provincial command met on Tuesday evening and Wednesday morning to get the agenda in shape for the coming of the convention in the afternoon. Judging by the matters to be discussed and the number of delegates present, from locals in all parts of the province, it is evident that the convention will go down in the history of the G. W. V. A. in Alberta as one of the most important ever held. Sixty delegates had registered up to noon on Wednesday.

ALL MEDIATION FAILS; TURKEY WILL NOT SIGN PEACE TREATY

LAUSANNE, Feb. 7.—(By Canadian Press).—All mediation has definitely failed; Turkey will not sign the Allied treaty at the present time, even with the latest concessions proposed, and within a few hours Ismet Pasha will leave for Ankara to consult with his government. So far as its object was to conclude a speedy peace, the Near East conference has failed. Count Massigli, secretary-general, in behalf of the powers, urged Ismet to remain and continue the negotiations. At the same time he asked for a clear statement of the points Turkey insisted on in the treaty.

Up to Allies

Ismet replied that the next move was up to the Allies, for Turkey stood by her note of February 4, namely, that she would sign about 80 per cent of the clauses of the treaty, but desired that the others, including the financial and economic clauses, should be postponed for later negotiations.

Ismet added that he needed to consult with his government, but was ready to resume the negotiations when the Allies suggested. As the conference had not officially broken down, the armistice would continue, and he promised to do everything humanly possible to prevent an outbreak of hostilities.

BRITISH TURN DEAF EAR TO TURKISH ULTIMATUM

LONDON, Feb. 7.—(By Canadian Press).—The British intend to pay no attention to the threatening Turkish ultimatum demanding that the Allied warships leave Smyrna, it was stated authoritatively this afternoon. There is nothing in the armistice agreement prohibiting the presence there of Allied warships, it was added, and the British do not intend to leave.

CONTEMPT OF COURT

There had been a passage of words between a judge and a lawyer, when the latter deliberately turned his back on the former. "Sir," asked the judge, sternly, "are you trying to show contempt of court?" "No sir," came the reply; "I was trying to conceal it."

HE MUST BE A FRUITMAN

A New York grocer says he found in a basket of Florida beans: "Dearest Sweet Pea: Do you carrot all for me? My heart beats for you. With your radish hair and your turnip nose, you are the apple of my eye. Give me a date, if we cantaloupe. Lettuce marry, anyway. I know we would make a happy pear.—Lima Bean.

WISE and OTHERWISE

Feminine intuition is the mother of "I-told-you-so."

A cynic is a man who laughs at the world with tears in his eyes.

Sympathy steps into the shadow to lead the sorrower into the sunshine.

It is rumored that dress materials can be extracted from bananas. Just the thing to slip on in a hurry.

Every man is his own ancestor and his own heir; he devises his own future and inherits his own past.

Pittsburg cashier killed and $20,000 stolen. No arrests. Gentleman at a prominent New York hotel transferred a flask from one pocket to another. Arrested and held in the sum of $500 bail. Great age this.

In the latest book of anecdotes by "Quex," which has just been published, is the following: "Auntie, did you ever have a proposal?" "Once, dear, a gentleman asked me over the telephone to marry him, but he had the wrong number."

SO IT GOES

I never wore a dinner coat.
Or anything that looked half-formal
But every other soul I'd note
Was dressed in tweeds or serges normal;

I never went to an affair
In striped tie and suit of gray.
But every person who was there
Fooled me, and dressed the other way.

CONTENTMENT

I, in my small garden sit
And commune with my flowers,
Mingling with their whisperings
My thoughts of bygone hours.

Friendly greetings comfort bring,
And blending with the breath
Of the living blossoms sweet,
Till evening weaves her wreath.

When the midnight chimes awake
Sweet memories of yore,
Prayerful moments keep me free
From vigils past and o'er

Sleep, the panacea for
The ills so many fear,
Now frequently with soft embrace
With garden glimpses cheer.

Peaceful is my garden small,
Though racous sounds may boom.
Far, without, around, but here
My garden is my room!

—Fane Sewell

A NIGHT OF STARS

A spacious oriflamme, a shower of gold, Transcendent gems strewn o'er the dress of God,
Sung by the psalmist on the holy sod,
And far remote above this earthy mould,

Perhaps I am irreverent and bold,
Glad as I am with vestures of the cold,
To gaze as he who bore the mystic rod,
When God passed by that shepherd of the fold.

And yet I feel I am a stranger here,
When God's resplendent messengers appear
Inviting me from scenes that chafe and mar,
To some congenial place that brooks no night.

Where I shall dwell forever in the light
Ineffable of Christ, my morning star.
Levack, Ont. —O. McCullough.

A TRAGIC FIGURE IN THE BRITISH COMMONS

Unquestionably the most pathetic figure that sits in the British House of Commons is Mr. Asquith. The party of which he was once the leader is split into factions, and these factions united have not the strength of the Labor party. Even that faction over which Mr. Asquith himself presides is said to be looking for Sir John Simon to give it leadership. Asquith himself is a spent force. No longer can he dream of one day forming a government. His career is over and yet he lingers in the house. The country has forgotten the great things he did in the war. It remembers, when it thinks about him at all, only the things he neglected to do. It sees him as an old man thrust ruthlessly aside by Lloyd George, and if it no longer regards Lloyd George as a hero, it certainly does not view Asquith as a martyr. The published indiscretions of Mrs. Asquith have been the last nail in her husband's coffin politically. He has lived to see the downfall of the man who supplanted him. It is difficult to believe that he will live long enough to enjoy any more such thrills.

Jowett's Favorite Pupil

Asquith is a member of that middle class which in the past fifty years has given such statesmen as Gladstone, Chamberlain, Morley, Lloyd George and Bonar Law to the British Empire. He comes of a Yorkshire manufacturing family, and because it lacked the social ambition, he was sent not to one of the great public schools but to the City of London School. There, however, he won a scholarship in Oxford and went to Balliol, then presided over by the famous Dr. Jowett, who is said to have exercised through his distinguished pupils more influence in British public affairs than any other man of his time. Of all his pupils, Jowett thought most highly of Asquith. When he left he said: "Asquith is the one pupil of mine for whom I most confidentially predict success. Asquith will get on, he is so direct."

Lawyer and Parliamentarian

Jowett was not mistaken. Asquith did get on. He became a lawyer and one of the leaders of the bar. He was clear-minded, truthful, a speaker of uncommon lucidity, persevering, and he had an uncanny ability remarked both as a lawyer and as a member of parliament of stripping a question to its essentials, and of never being lured aside by a red herring. Asquith was never popular in the way Lloyd George was. He scorned the arts of popularity, and never sought to have his newspaper friends build him up into a romantic or striking character. At bottom perhaps he was as companionable and comradely a man as was ever Prime Minister of England, for he did not lack the human weaknesses which endear a man to his fellows, especially if he has with the weaknesses unusual abilities. But he remained intellectually austere.

In the War

In the early days of the war Asquith's leadership was not questioned. Nobody accused him of having left anything undone to avert the conflict, or to keep Britain out of it if it could be done without a sacrifice of honor. But there came a time when there was general agreement among those who worked with him that he was a failure. It may be that posterity will revise this verdict. But at present it stands, and assuming it be correct one critic says that Asquith failed because he was too old, too tired for the job. The fight he had waged against the House of Lords and for the Home Rule Bill had exhausted him mentally. He was burnt out. He responded for a while, and some of his speeches rang throughout the world. His famous "We shall no" sheathe the sword which we have not lightly drawn" was one of the noblest utterances of the war.

Forced Out by Lloyd George

Toward the end of December, 1919, he and Lloyd George had ceased to work loyally together and the latter offered his resignation, accompanied by a letter in which he denounced the vacillation of his chief, and asserted cruelly that his policy had thrown away many opportunities of victory. The government over which Asquith then presided was a coalition, he having been forced by the shell scandals of the previous year to call upon Unionists to help him. The majority of the ministers seemed to favor Lloyd George. So Asquith resigned and Lloyd George took his place. Asquith feels today that he was the victim of the basest treachery and ingratitude. He never could have acted as Lloyd George acted, but throughout the war he never opened his lips in public save in support of the man who thrust him out. In the famous "victory" elections he failed to retain his seat, but came back in 1920, and now is the head of sixty members, though it appears that even this distinction will presently be taken from him by Sir John Simon.

The mistress was interviewing the new charwoman. "Have you been married Susan?" she inquired. "Twice, mum," Susan told her. "Have you any children?" "Yes, mum. I've three. One by th' third wife uv me second husband, an' two by the second wife uv me first."

SONG OF THE EXILE

I have forgotten the winding paths that led down to the sea,
And the white gull's nest upon the cliffs is now a dream to me;
Familiar things of childhood, but I cannot quite forget
The scent on April mornings of black-thorn in the wet.

I have forgotten the meadows I roamed in former years,
And the mountain tops are hidden by a blinding mist of tears;
But I hear the silence broken by the lone lark on the moor,
And I see the brown hens strutting beside my mother's door.

I have forgotten the flowers I picked in earlier days,
The violets I discovered in hidden mossy ways,
And the bluebells in the forest, but I remember still
The splashing sound of water on the old wheel of the mill.

The pools reflect the sunset on the broad moors after rain,
And the moon upon the ocean is shining once again;
I shall never more behold them, they are ever lost to me,
But the west wind through my window is blowing from the sea.

MACLEOD DEFEATED AT CARDSTON LAST FRIDAY

CARDSTON, Feb. 6.—The Cardston fans witnessed the fastest, cleanest game staged at the Main rink this season, when the speedy youths from Macleod tangled with the local boys on Saturday night.

From the time Referee Majorison threw the puck in the centre to the end it was a whirlwind of a game. The first period was fast and furious, each team trying to win the applause of the large crowd of fans.

The Macleod puck chasers made several good plays, McMullin playing a star game in the goal, shaking the puck off like water on a duck's back.

Andy, Mickey and Freddie played a professional game, but the defence was so strong on both teams that it seemed impossible to score. The period ended with no score.

The second period was like chain lightning and the spectators were so enthused that they forgot about the chilly wind. Dean, as usual, starring for Macleod, struck a hot one and passed Mack. This got Mickey's English up and he went through the Macleod defence like a blue streak and tied the score. Thus ended the second period.

The last period was one grand display of skill and both teams were jazzed up for the occasion, Freddie, playing his usual star game, scoring one more for Cardston.

McDonald tied the score again. The game went on so fast that the spectators could hardly follow the puck with their eyes, but Freddie found it, and so did the Macleod goal keeper—in his net. The Macleod boys tried every art and science they knew to tie the score again, but in vain—the game ending 3 to 2 in Cardston's favor.

We must hand it to the Macleod youths that they are the makings of a championship team, but Cardston has decided to win the rest of the games of the season.

Three rinks are invading Blairmore and Coleman on Wednesday and let's hope they uphold the reputation of Macleod curlers.

It was decided by the committee to hold the local bonspiel on Monday, February 12th, the first draws to be at 4 o'clock in the afternoon. The cups to be played for are the Hudson's Bay, P. Burns Co. Ltd., and Granum cup. The following week the ladies will be included in the rinks to play for the Shaw cup and prizes. The prizes this year are better than for some years and the Club wishes to thank all firms who have so kindly supported our bonspiel and given prizes.

Granum is expecting to be able to send one rink.

The prize list for the bonspiel is as follows:

Hudson's Bay Cup:—First prize, 4 pipes donated by Hudson's Bay Co., Calgary; second prize, 4 casseroles, donated by Walter Woods & Co.; third prize, 4 enamel double boilers, donated by Theo. Davidson & Co., Calgary; fourth prize, 4 tins tobacco.

CURLING COMMANDMENTS

(By Broomstock.)

1.—Thou shalt have no other game before me, for I am the roarin' game which was in the beginning, (even in the stone age), is now and ever shall be.

2.—Come not unto the ice with the old house broom. Thou canst not quicken the pace of a dying rock with a last year's broom.

3.—Thou shalt learn thy turns, both the out and the in, for the skip will not hold him guiltless that throweth a wrong turn.

4.—Play not a running shot when thou art asked for a guard, lest thou raise thine own shot, so sending thy skip in the air; such play getteth his goat, quereth his game, causeth him to swallow his gum and to revile thee openly.

5.—Thou shalt harken diligently to the defeated skip when his voice is lifted up in lamentations against the punk ice, and thou shalt not turn thy face from him when he blameth his third man. Even so shalt thou secure a listener against the day of thine own defeat.

6.—Thou shalt not strew straws from thy broom in the path of thine own or thine adversaries' rock, neither shalt thou spit in front of them, causing them to become pork, for even as pork is an admonition to the Jews, so also is the hog, in sight of a skip.

7.—Thou shalt have no discourse with thine adversary while his foot is in the hack, and his hand is on the rock, but if thou wilt, thou canst pray for him.

8.—Thou shalt not push or kick a rock into the house from behind stealthily for the opposing skip will know of surety and his anger will be kindled against thee and he will rise up in righteous indignation over thee and smite thee, even with the edge of the broom handle and thrust thee hence from the sight of the curlers and the days of thy curling will be ended, for this is an unpardonable sin.

9.—Thou shalt not covet thy opponent's rock, nor his broom nor his lead player. Neither shalt thou flick from him his third man, who is his main stay and a wall of defence in the day of battle.

10.—And when you cometh to the last end and hast won the game, and hast still a rock to play, and thou playest with great deliberation and thy rock gambols playfully down the ice, sailing jauntily round the guard and through the port, and wicketh thine adversary's rock into the house, so that it counts him the end and the game, and thou comest down the ice in fear and trembling, and art hailed by the enemy as a good sport and curler, and by thine own side with groans and murmurings and findest thou hast peddled the game away, thou shalt receive the proffered hand of thine adversary and wring it, even if in thy heart thou shouldst wish it were his neck.—Rossland Miner, Rossland, B.C.

The attendance at these various functions speaks well for the interest of Macleod's public in this laudable effort to place the local hospital a step further in the front ranks of institutions of its nature in the province.

NEW RED CROSS PUBLICATION

The most recent publication of the provincial office of the Red Cross Society is a forty page booklet entitled The Junior Red Cross Handbook. This book has been compiled for the use of branches as a textbook of health service and citizenship, the twin aims of all Red Cross work. Teachers and educationalists will find much in it of value, as it presents in simple direct form the many phases of Red Cross activities, which are practicable in the various grades of school work. The close co-operation which exists between the Red Cross and the Department of Education is illustrated by the following recommendation from the Minister of Education "That where possible teachers be encouraged to assist in organizing Junior Branches. That the teachers devote half an hour Friday afternoon once a month, to Red Cross meetings and use Red Cross material in connection with their classes." The contents of the book are as follows: Aims of Red Cross, Motto and Pledge, Method of Organization, Rules. What may be done by Red Cross Juniors provincially and locally. Suggestions for carrying on Junior Work. First Aid Hints. The information is classified under five schedules, Health, Service, Citizenship, Friendliness, Junior Reading Supplements are obtainable to each schedule, some of which may be found at the end of the book, such as Health Plays, with suggestions for their production, Health Posters with directions for the various grades, Relief Garments and Hospital Sewing, First Aid for School emergencies, Subjects for discussion at Red Cross meetings etc. The Red Cross in compiling the supplements has secured the services of experts each of whom has specialized in a particular subject. The Health Game supplement, for instance, has been written after consultation with a health nurse and public school teacher, whose experiences in Alberta schools where this form of health teaching is established, have warranted these expressions of opinion as to the great value to children at home and in school of playing the Health Game and thus forming hygienic habits for life. Similarly the directions for the producing of plays and making of posters emanate from teachers of long experience in dramatization and art. Besides the health topics are samples of minutes, advice on entertainments, and notices of the Red Cross Junior, the official organ of the Red Cross Society. The frontispiece of the Handbook is a photograph of the Junior Red Cross Children's Hospital in Calgary, the first of its kind in Canada, which is supported by the united efforts of the Juniors all over the province, and is the chief undertaking of the society and the Sick Children's Fund in which all monies sent in by the Juniors are placed and are used solely for the purpose of assisting sick and crippled children to receive medical treatment. The outside cover of the Handbook contains a cordial invitation to teachers, adult advisors and all members of the Junior Red Cross to visit the superintendent at headquarters and to visit the Hospital, 522-18th Avenue West. Everyone interested in Red Cross work amongst the children should obtain a copy of this book mailed free on request. Apply Superintendent Junior Red Cross, O'Sullivan Block, Calgary.

STOLE AUTOMOBILES

VALUED AT $2,000,000

Canadians should have a special interest in a story Samuel Hopkins Adams tells in Collier's as the result of an interview with a man who, in the course of twenty years' operations, stole $2,000,000 worth of automobiles. The interview took place in a New York penitentiary where this master robber, who is called Mellish, is serving a ten-year sentence. Since Mr. Mellish is now sixty years old, it seems improbable that he will steal any more cars, and on that account he was communicative as to how cars are stolen. Incidentally he remarked that many of the high-class American cars that are stolen are sold in Canada, and he mentions one particularly expensive car that is now being driven by a Toronto man. Incidentally he says that it was his custom when he stole a good car and drove it over the border to steal a Canadian car for the return journey and to load this Canadian car with liquor, which he had no trouble in smuggling into the United States, thus making three profits flow from the original operation.

Easy to Steal

Mr. Mellish was asked to suggest means whereby the theft of motors might be reduced. He was not helpful on this point. He said, "If you leave your bank roll leaning up against the curb somebody's going to pinch it," and he added, "The street's no safer place for your car than it is for your kids. Leave either of them there regularly and you'll have trouble. Better keep them at home." "But," said the interviewer, "the average man wants his car handy when he goes about." "That's what makes the game so simple," replied the thief. "He takes his chances and he pretty often loses. You wouldn't leave five thousand dollars lying around in the gutter would you?" "But a five-thousand-dollar car is somewhat more cumbersome to steal than a five-thousand-dollar roll of bills." "Not much. I stole four of 'em in one week—five thousand and up. That was years ago, when the big cars weren't all smeared over with identification numbers—and cleared nearly $15,000 on the lot, with hardly more trouble than picking up that much in bills."

Fords the Easiest

But Mr. Mellish in recent years has specialized on Ford cars. It is true that the profit on Fords is much less than that on any other car. On the other hand, it is easier to sell a dozen stolen Fords than one stolen Packard. Since Fords are more numerous than any other car the field for the operations of the car thief is much broader. In the third place, there are so many Fords on the street that a mere change of licence number will enable the thief to make a successful getaway. Notice to the police that Rolls-Royce has been stolen will bring every Rolls-Royce under close scrutiny and suspicion. Notice that a Ford has been stolen will have no such result. There is also the advantage that if the thief is caught before he gets clear with the Ford he desires to steal he can plead that he made a mistake in the car, especially since Mr. Mellish used always to operate with his own Ford car parked beside the Ford he had designs on.

How He Worked

He worked always from his own car with an accomplice. The business of the latter was to keep a lookout for the owner and give the signal if he appeared unexpectedly. Before a car was stolen it was usually marked down by the thieves and they took pains to inform themselves of the general habits of the owner. Thus they could tell with reasonable accuracy how long he might be expected to leave his car in a given place and therefore how much start they would have. Having driven away with the stolen car the first move was to go into a garage and make a few rough alterations, such as changing the licence number and knocking off any conspicuous extras, like a spotlight or a distinctive spare-holder. He asserted that most garages were not particularly inquisitive about these slight changes because there was usually some profit accruing to the owner. A district attorney who was present at the interview said that Mellish had exaggerated the ease against the garages, most of the high-class ones being straight, but he admitted that he could point out many garages where "it would be risking your life to try to get above the second floor."

Scorned Protective Devices

Mellish and his partner operated a garage of their own where the fine work of obliterating the numbers of cars was done. Before they stole a car, he says, they usually had a customer in sight. Frequently they sold the stolen car to the owner, having altered it so that he could never recognize it. Many of the people who bought cars from them suspected that they were stolen and these cars were usually stolen again, because the second victim could be calculated upon not to make an undue rumpus at the police station. Modern safety devices he scorned. One of the most favored of them, whereby the steering wheel fails to work after the car has been locked, did not baffle him for, with a lever he jacked up the stolen car so that the front part rested on his own car and thus he towed it away. On another occasion he put a stolen car in a big covered truck operated by his confederate, and that is the car which, he says, is now being driven by a man in Toronto.

DANGER IN FARM WELL WATER

Water from the farm well may be clear and sparkling and pleasant to the taste and yet polluted, and in consequence a source of danger to health. If it comes from a shallow well that is located too close to a source of contamination, it is certain sooner or later to become unwholesome. The chemistry Division of the Experimental Farms at Ottawa, which examines well waters from farm homesteads, reports that about 35 per cent are found to be unsafe for drinking purposes. It should be remembered, however, that only suspected samples are sent in. Of 119 samples dealt with in 1922, 24 per cent were found to be pure and wholesome, while the remainder were either suspicious or positively dangerous. Care should therefore be exercised, first in locating the well and, secondly, in seeing that it is properly protected from contamination. The Dominion Chemist, in his annual report, recommends a spring or pure stream as perhaps the best source of water supply. Water from such a source may be piped to the house and farm buildings by gravitation, if a proper fall can be secured, but otherwise by the aid of a windmill, gasoline engine or hydraulic ram. A well to be reasonably safe should be at least fifty yards from the barnyard or other possible contaminating source. It is further recommended that a radius of fifty yards be kept entirely free from all manure and other filth and preferably maintained in sod. It will be found of very considerable value to line the well to a depth of 10-12 feet and to a thickness of say 6 inches with concrete or puddled clay, continuing this wall or lining for a foot above ground. A safe supply can usually be depended upon if the well is bored or drilled through a layer of impervious rock, tapping a deep-seated source of water.

Water that is suspected of contamination may be made safe by either of two simple ways. One is to boil it for ten or fifteen minutes; the other is to treat by chlorination. Rub up a level teaspoonful of chloride of lime in water to the consistency of a creamy paste. This may be diluted with a pint of water and kept for some days bottled and corked as a stock solution. A teaspoonful of this solution should be added with stirring to each two gallons of the water to be treated. After fifteen minutes all disease germs present will be destroyed.

Farmers desirous of an analysis should write to the Division of Chemistry, Experimental Farm, Ottawa, for the necessary directions for the collection and shipment of the sample.

Ladies' Auxiliary Curling Club

The Macleod ladies have invaded the realms of the "roarin' game" and, as evidenced by their membership in the Macleod Curling Club, will make local history on Macleod ice this season.

The executive duties of the lady curlers are vested in Mrs. V. Pearson and Mrs. O. Inkster; and the rinks of fair curlers are to date, the first lady in each rink being skip:

Mrs. R. Hamilton, Mrs. V. Pearson, Mrs. J. Gillespie, Mrs. G. L. Pollard, Mrs. Kyle, Mrs. W. Shield, Mrs. Blakely, Mrs. O. Inkster.

A bonspiel—ladies vs. gentlemen—will occur the third week in February.

The ladies play every afternoon but Wednesday and some mean-spirited person has suggested that every day but Wednesday is a partial fast day for their devoted husbands. Tut-tut.
